Licensing Procedures & Practices

The course provides government officials with 1) a review of the key steps in the export license decision-making process, 2) review of export and re-export requirements, and 3) the role of other agencies in the review process. The objective of this training domestically is to enhance compliance with the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) and International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR). Foreign versions of this course have assisted other governments to set up or improve their export license review offices.

The course will feature a variety of teaching techniques to increase attentiveness and boost retention. Participants will learn the critical fundamentals, including:

- Why is this critical to your organization?
- What should happen in each department for the system to be effective overall?
- Who performs the respective tasks? How are their efforts coordinated and updated?
- When should things happen to boost effectiveness and efficiency?
- How are these tasks to be performed? What are the methods and metrics?

Why Choose CTP Training Services?

- Over 16 years, CTP has developed over 100 training modules based on U.S. and international best practices.
- We can utilize our existing modules for specific purposes or combine and customize them to make a customized corporate/organizational program that we deliver at multiple locations domestically and/or internationally. This is a cost effective way to deliver specific programs or large training initiatives without having the permanent overhead of a large training department.
- To meet specific training objectives, CTP combines lectures with practical hands-on training exercises and computer-based job aids, based on the adult learning principles of Instructional Systems Design.
- CTP's training modules include hundreds of practical interactive exercises—computer and paper based—consisting of over 1,000 questions that are used to reinforce specific training objectives.

Customized Training

Technical Expertise:

Not only do we have deep experience in these areas, several of our experts worked formerly within the government where they authored key segments of the existing regulations and technical guidelines.

This course is designed for experts within domestic agencies who have overseas dealings and interaction with foreign nationals and must prepare and submit licenses to DOC and/or DDTC for all their licensable materials and information in order to comply with U.S. export control laws.

Instructional System Design (ISD):

ISD is based on modern theories of adult learning, first distilling the critical knowledge, skills, and abilities of each subject area then developing targeted materials and delivery techniques using a combination of real-world case studies, field exercises, and interactive computer-based programs.

The objective is to imbue each training project with a customized methodology that is tailored to client-specific goals. ISD methodologies are considered to be state-of-the-art in adult learning today.

About CTP:

CTP has deployed customized training solutions in over sixty countries.

Our government clients know us best for our subject matter experts and innovative use of Instructional Systems Design (ISD) techniques.

Much of our work is overseas, working in conjunction with U.S. embassies, foreign governments and NGOs.
